Cann Can. There is No Doubt About That Point

New York Swimmer Who Was Despised Outsider Flashes Across Line First in Furlong Swim, Winning From Kelli, Duke, Cunha, Kruger and Vollmer in Close to Record Time—Kelli Makes Great Showing Saturday—Langer Wins 440

A Coming Champ.

John Kelli, who was a novice this year, has reached the stage where he must be called a prospect for championship honors. He made a remarkable showing on Saturday evening, and looks like a future champion. Kelli has strength and speed, and should Duke decide to turn professional Kelli will be a big factor with Cunha, Lane and Kruger in retaining the honors of Hawaii.

JOHN KELII MAY BE CHAMPION OF WORLD ERE LONG

Healani Natator Proves He is to Be Counted on; Was Novice This Year.

Presenting John Kelli, coming champion. Up to this year the name of John Kelli was not heard of in swimming circles. No one had expected that out of the score of novices who were busily engaged in swimming around the incoming ships a future champion would come. John Kelli has not been given the full credit for his feats this year, as he has been back in the shadow of Duke, Cunha, Kruger and Lane, but on Saturday evening the former novice made a showing that will not soon be forgotten in swimming circles. He finished second in a great sprint to Ted Cann, and made better time than he had ever made before. Had he made the turns as well as the New York swimmer, he might now have held the world's mark for the distance. This is pretty fair work for a swimmer who was a novice this year.

Stars in Three Events. In the 440-yard race he made a great finish against Cann and again surprised the swimming fans. It was in the 100 that he made another great showing, and few believed that he could win from Clarence Lane, a great little swimmer, but Kelli did it, and gave George Cunha, one of the best swimmers in the world today, a great race. Kelli was beaten, but he lost to a good man. No one would have believed that he could defeat Duke P. Kahanamoku, George Cunha and Herbert Vollmer in a 220-yard swim. Kelli came out in the novice race this year, and his friends of the deep knew. They knew that he could win from the other novices, and Kelli did. He placed his name in the limelight and has kept it there ever since. His performance on Saturday night means that he will be in the chase for honors in the future, and the other natators will have to look to their laurels.

a winner by three yards. Lemon led the field from the first 130 yards, and had the best of it from every angle, when Frana started a sprint that carried him ahead to the barge and although Lemon made a great effort in the last 20 yards could not catch the Healani swimmer.

Five hundred hot carriers at Hartford, who have been on strike, returned to work.

STARS TO MEET IN BIG FEATURE RACE ON HARBOR

Leading Natators Will Battle for Honors in 100-Yard National Championship

This evening the 100-yard national championship will be held on the harbor and this event is the one which the swimmers were brought over to compete in. This attraction, with the 800-yard swim, should bring out a large crowd to witness the race between the contenders. It is expected that the largest crowd in attendance will watch this meet this evening. Duke Kahanamoku will defend his title and should win from the mainland natators. He was not seen at his best throughout the meet and consequently has not smashed any records. Whether or not a new mark will be set is not known, but the choice to win the 100-yard swim tonight is Ludy Langer. Ted Cann showed that he has a sprint and should come strong at the finish, with Herbert Vollmer and George Cunha well up.

Harold Kruger will be timed for the 100-yard backstroke and may go through to the 150-yard mark for a record. The century record is 1:08 2-5, held by Walter Brack of Germany. Harry Helmer has the record for the 150 yards at 1:53 3-5.

The 800-yard swim will feature Ludy Langer, Ted Cann, Duke Kahanamoku, John Kelli and Herbert Vollmer. This event looks like a victory for Langer, with Kelli a strong place prospect. Both Vollmer and Cann have made a fast mark in this distance, but neither call this their race. If Duke is right he should beat out John Kelli for a place.

The entries for this evening are as follows:
 50-Yard Boys, Under 13 Years. Antone Danti, Shigi Matsuguma, Palama Settlement; Ernest Cook, Outrigger Club.
 100-Yard National Championship. Herbert Vollmer, Ted Cann, N. Y. Athletic Club; Ludy Langer, University of California; John Kelli, Harold Kruger, George Cunha, H. Y. B. C.; Duke P. Kahanamoku, Hui Nalu; Clarence K. Lane, Fred L. Howard, Jr., unattached.

50-Yard Novice Race. Al Kin Yee, Robert K. Fuller, H. Y. B. C.; Leslie Lemon, Kenneth Auld, Matsuguma, Anson Dereg, Pua Kealoha, Ken Matsuguma, Palama Settlement; Lorrin P. Thurston, David Carter, unattached; Arthur W. Pingry, Elmer T. Johns, Max Heinze, Percy R. Merrilees, Arthur Panzer, Port De Russy; Ernest C. Gray, S. R. L. Short, unattached.

220-Yard Service Race. Howard M. Geetz, Arthur W. Pingry, Elmer T. Johns, Carbis A. Walker, Wm. H. Hensley, Port De Russy, Dennis A. MacFegan, U. S. S. Alert.

Harold Kruger will make an attempt to lower the world's record in the back-stroke tonight on the harbor. As yet there has not been a world's mark set in the meet, and friends of the blonde swimmer are expecting that he will make a great attack on the mark. In addition to being a great back-stroke artist, "Stubby" is well up with the furling swimmers. In the 220-yard swim Kruger made 2:29 in practice two days before the meet.

DUKE WAS NOT IN SHAPE FOR 440-YARD SWIM

Many spectators at the swimming meet in Saturday evening wondered why Duke P. Kahanamoku did not enter the 440-yard event. When the race was called the committee asked Duke about entering, and the world's champion said that he was not feeling well. Rather than disappoint the crowd by making a poor showing in the race he decided not to enter, and to save his strength for the championship event tonight.

SAN JOSE BASEBALL PLAYER IS IN CITY

Roy West of Los Angeles, a baseball player and fan and former member of the San Jose, Cal., team in the now extinct state league, is in Honolulu, having arrived here last week on the Wilhelmina.

West played an outfield position in the San Jose team in 1913, the last year that the state league was in existence. This league was gotten up by the coast league officials as a "farm" for the latter organization, the idea being to work out young players in it and keep them for the coast teams until they had developed coast league caliber. West may locate in Honolulu and says he will take a chance at baseball here if opportunity offers.

Oahu team opened the polo season at Kapiolani park on Saturday afternoon with a victory over Kauai by a score of 7 1-2 to 3-4. To one who did not witness the contest it would be thought that the spectators were treated with a runaway match, but such was not the case.

Throughout the entire contest the visiting four battled with the local poloists, and every one of the goals secured by Oahu was the result of hard play breaking through a defense that was more than paper. Despite the size of the score the Kauai team made a grand showing, and should be a factor in the coming matches for the championship.

Oahu Teamwork. Oahu had not only individual play that stood out through the periods but teamwork that really counted. There has been much better polo played by both teams, but the dash and the riding-out on Saturday was a pleasure to the onlookers. Taken all around it was not the best polo although Oahu showed the teamwork that has made this four a factor in the mallet game.

Featuring the match was the brilliant play of Harold Castle, Jay Gould and Malina. Throughout the match they played polo of a sensational sort, hard riding, clever back hands, and long driving. Castle was well mounted and made but few misses. He played the ball well up to Dillingham and his long passes were big factors in the play.

Malina Hits Hard. Malina played a dashing game throughout the eight periods. He rode his man out well at times, and after the ball had been sent from the back made some wonderful long drives. His hard hitting featured the match, and although he did not play the careful and studied polo that was noticeable in the play of the Oahu No. 3 he was at all times in the game.

Jay Gould proved conclusively to the polo spectators that he was worthy of being called a five-goal man by the authorities in the East. Oahu's score would have been much larger had not Gould made some great saves when the goal was threatened. On three occasions he made backhand shots at an angle which sent the white ball out of the danger zone.

Kauai had a number of good ponies but the visiting contingent was not so well mounted as the Oahu four. Gould had Lydia, a fast pony in two periods, and got everything possible out of every mount. There was plenty of hard riding, and at times the players came close to fouls.

Dillingham Plays Great Polo. Out of the play of Saturday there was one poloist who played excellent polo. Walter Dillingham throughout the game did not make the dashes that were so noticeable of some of the other players, but following his play one could see that he knew polo from every angle. It was the short shots and clever passes that brought up his play to the heights that he obtained. When called upon to make a ride-out he responded, and the number of goals made speaks well for his play against the Kauai contingent.

There has been some doubt as to whether Dillingham could play his game after his recent illness, but if his work of Saturday was any criterion then the Oahu four may well figure on an excellent chance for the championship. In fact, looking at the championship, the Army will have play, Maui and the Army will have play, Maui and the Army will have play, Maui and the Army will have play.

At times on Saturday the players did not show the teamwork that was expected, and Dillingham and Macfarlane both made misses that is not part of their game, but with improved play the match on Saturday, September 9, is not to be feared. Maui has a great team with excellent ponies, but the mallet men from the Garden Isle are certain not to be favorites over Oahu.

Kauai Scores First. Kauai started the play of Saturday in the first period and by pretty passing down the field Spalding shot a hard goal in a little more than two minutes of play after the ball was thrown in. Malina passed the ball to Spalding at this time on a hard drive. After time had been called Walter Dillingham received the ball near the boards and got by Gould for a goal.

Kauai was making a great showing throughout the first two periods and neither team scored in the second. Playing against the wind which was blowing down the field in the third period Castle and Dillingham working together made a goal each, and Gould saved a third by a great backhand near the lattice.

Dillingham was not losing control of the attack and kept at the tactics which eventually gave Oahu a victory. Playing in the center of the field, his short shots, which were made at a difficult angle, kept the ball away from the Kauai players, and Castle receiving a pass, rode down the field and scored a goal in a hard drive. In this period Spalding made a safety just before time was called.

Hard Playing in Sixth. The sixth period was one of the hardest played in the entire match. Gould was on a fast mount and continually played the ball back from his goal with unerring shots. The four were out to score and as a result of the hard play Gould and Macfarlane had fouls called against them.

After Malina had made a goal from a hard shot not far from the center of the field, the Kauai defense crumpled, and although it continued to make an attack, it had nothing to withstand the offense of the Oahu four, and after playing the boards for a long period Macfarlane received the ball on a pass and rode through with a hard angle shot for a goal. Two minutes later Walter Dillingham received the ball from the boards, and, riding out Gould to the line, sent a goal through.

In the last period Dillingham made one goal and had an opportunity to score again, but Gould saved the score one foot from the line, and reaching under his pony's neck, shot the ball back across the field. After this time was called, with the ball in Kauai's line territory.

The summary of the play on Saturday was as follows:

TEN CENTIMETER RACE WILL BE FEATURE EVENT

It was officially announced last Saturday evening at the swimming meet by Glenn Jackson that Chief of Detectives Arthur McDuffie, "Sonny" Cunha, Lorrin Andrews, Dr. Monarrat, Jack Phillips, P. Dankey and D. L. Conkling would compete in a 10-L Conkling would compete in a 10-L centimeter race on the harbor this evening for the heavyweight swimming championship of the Hawaiian Islands.

This race is looked to be the feature event of the meet, as well as the most amusing, and the fans predict that even Joe Whittle's record as an amateur will be smashed to smithereens.

Ten centimeters. How long is that course? According to the almanac a centimeter is just 6.3937 inches in length, and ten of those meters would make the course a little less than four inches. Evidently the entrants will be requested to swim over a little longer course. For the lucky winner a trophy has been offered.
